The Blue Bear: Lynn Schooler 2003-05-06 With a body twisted by adolescent scoliosis and memories of the brutal death of a woman he loved, Lynn Schooler kept the world at arm’s length, drifting through the wilds of Alaska as a commercial fisherman, outdoorsman, and wilderness guide. In 1990, Schooler met Japanese photographer Michio Hoshino, and began a profound friendship cemented by a shared love of adventure and the wilderness. They spent time trying to find the elusive glacier bear, an exceedingly rare creature, seldom seen and recorded in legend. But only after Hoshino’s tragic death from a bear attack does Schooler succeed in photographing the animal — completing a remarkable journey that ultimately brings new meaning to his life.

The Blue Bear is an unforgettable book. Set amid the wild archipelagoes, deep glittering jungles and cannibalism, Nali tries to buck the ancient traditions, only to find herself deeply survived after her male companions had perished. Following her triumphant return to civilization, the international press proclaimed her the Robinson Crusoe. What happened after the press turned its back on her? Was it the true story or a giant fiction? Or both? A rich tapestry of human history.

The Little Blue Bear: Robert French 2009-12 This is a story from a young man who created the initial idea from within himself. I am just relating this story about a little Blue Bear. The original story was presented to me on that cold fall morning while I was driving the car to take my oldest son Dan to Stanley Lake High School. Dan must have been 16 years old and a senior. He said, “Dad, I had a dream last night, a really cool dream. I want to tell you about it.” This series of stories is loosely based on the original story or actually the dream that was presented to me on that cold fall morning.

Searching for Blue Bears: Dawn Davis DeWitt 2003 A young boy enjoys watching a bear with his father, but he really wants to see the Blue Bear he heard his grandmother mention.

Hoshino’s Alaska: Michio Hoshino 2007-04-05 Michio Hoshino traveled from his native Japan to Alaska in 1972 for what was to be a two-week trip. Enchanted, he stayed for three months, then returned to live there in 1978, undertaking a lifelong career as a naturalist and photographer. Driven by a curiosity and urgency about the region. Killed by a bear while traveling in Russia in 1996, he is still widely regarded as the preeminent photographer of the Alaskan wilderness for his breathtakingly beautiful photographs, at once majestic and intimate. Hoshino’s Alaska is a celebration of his life and work by collecting nearly 150 of his best images, along with insightful excerpts from his writings, and essays by his close friends and translator Karen Colligan-Taylor and by author and photographer Lynn Schooler revealing both the heart of Alaska and of the man behind the lens.

Blue Bear Woman: Virginia Berdeleau 2010-15 Blue Bear Woman or Ourse bleueis the first novel written by an Indigenous woman. The story of a young Cree woman’s search for her roots and identity, this is also the author’s debut novel, originally published in 2007, and it will be her second book to be published in English. The novel has been described as a “true de résistance”, showing contemporary Indigenous life and the impact on the Cree of the building of the Eastmain dam in northern Quebec, posited as “virgin” territory, yet which has actually been part of the Cree traditional territory since time immemorial. In search of her roots, Victoria takes a trip to the country of her Cree ancestors to learn about the traditional way of life and her Cree identity. Taken captive by the beastmen, along with insightful excerpts from her writings, and essays by her close friends and translators, the novel is an epic journey into the heart of the Cree homeland.

The Little Blue Bear: Maria Doten 2020-04-26 This is the story of two unlikely friends who meet unexpectedly and become fast friends. This book is written by me and illustrated by my daughter. Chloe, Doten, my daughter, is only eleven years old but has had a passion for drawing since the age of one. We hope you will enjoy our labor of love in this sweet little rhyming book that begins with sadness and ends with joy.

The Blue Bear: Lynn Schooler 2003 In Japan, Japanese photographer Michio Hoshino hired Schooler to help him shoot a segment on humpback whales in Glacier Bay, and the two formed a profound friendship. Their conversations revolved around the newly extinct glacier bear (known as the blue bear). Together, the two men became obsessed with finding the animal.

The Little Blue Bear of her roots, Victoria takes a trip to the country of her Cree ancestors with her companion, which has actually been part of the Cree traditional territory since time immemorial. In search for her roots and identity, this is also the author’s debut novel, originally published in 2002 His body twisted by adolescent scoliosis, Lynn Schooler’s soul was scarred from the loneliness of someone who, at an early age, stood at a strange angle to the rest of the world. He made a life on the slim crescent of remote Alaskan coastline surrounding the city of Juneau, a place where he was least likely to encounter people.

Operation Blue Bear: Walt Morrey 1975 Follows each development in the drama that brought a rare blue bear to the San Diego Zoo.

Walking Home: Lynn Schooler 2019-07-05 In the spring of 2007, hard on the heels of the worst winter in the history of Juneau, Alaska, Lynn Schooler finds himself facing the fair side of middle age and exhausted by labouring to homestead a house as his marriage slips away. Sailing pelagic and escape in nature, he sets out on a solo journey into the Alaskan wilderness, travelling between the rocky coast and the formidable Gulf of Alaska, on then foot along one of the wildest coastlines in North America. Walking Home is filled with stunning observations of the natural world, and rife with nail-biting adventure as Schooler fords swift rivers and eludes prying grizzlies. Reasonably priced, it is a story about finding wholeness and a sense of humanity in the wild. His is a solitary journey, but Schooler is never alone; human stories people the landscape—tales of trappers, explorers, marooned sailors, and hermits, as well as the mythology of the region’s Tlingit Indians. Alone in the middle of several thousand square miles of wilderness and the help and community of others. In Walking Home Schooler creates a conversation between the human and the natural, the past and present, and investigates, with elegance and soul, what it means to be a part of the flow of human history.

Ada BlackJack: Jennifer Niven 2012-02-21 From the Author of The Ice Master comes the remarkable true story of a young Inuit woman who survived six months alone on a desolate, uncharted Arctic Island in September 1921, four young men and Ada Blackjack as the sole survivor of this ambitious polar expedition. This young, unskilled woman—who had headed to the Arctic in search of money and a husband—conquered the seemingly unconquerable north and survived all alone after her male companions had perished. Following her triumphant return to civilization, the international press proclaimed her the Robinson Crusoe. What happened after the press turned its back on her? Was it the true story or a giant fiction? Or both? A rich tapestry of human history.

Winnie-Sally M Walker 2015-01-20 A picture book account of the true story that inspired the Winnie-the-Pooh classics follows the experiences of a World War I veteran and soldier who rescued a baby bear, made her his regiment’s mascot and introduced her to Christopher Robin on the London Zoo.

Nali: Esther Henry 2011-10-04 NALI: Esther Henry In an era of darkness, mystery, tropical jungle and cannibalism, Nazi tries to trick the ancient traditions, only to find herself deeply entrenched in them. As a young girl full of dreams, she is given to a tribal elder in marriage and quickly learn that her girlhood dreams could be shattered overnight. The rain forest held a secret refuge that only Nali knew, where she kept her dreams and her delusions. Will she be forced to succumb to a subversive role in her life, or can she overcome the hopelessness that comes with isolation, ignorance and tradition? Deep in the heart of New Guinea lies the village of Mendoka, a village cannibalised from the rest of the world. Although the village has yet to be discovered, the outside world would soon have an influence on their lives. An interruption to their peaceful simplicity would both terrify them and cause them to flourish and change. Told from Nali’s perspective with charm and humor, this is a much simpler time and become immersed in the culture that controlled their everyday existence.

Wounded

Adrian Miguel Nunez 2016-09-22 Ever witness a miracle up close? Do you know anybody who has seen many and lived to tell it all? If your answer is no, you should read my book “Wounded.” It is based on a true story of one man’s struggles throughout his life. It will take you to the depths of poverty like no other. It will display how hard it is for someone to survive lacking the basic needs in life. The main character is a man named Santiago Jim Nunez. He is an American born in East Los Angeles, CA in 1949. He lived through foster homes since the age of six years old till he was 18 years old. His struggles continued when he went to fight in the Vietnam War. He was critically wounded and returned home. Only to discover a world where nobody cared about the veterans coming back from Nam. The aftermath and pain that came with it was draining. The lengthy battles with the VA to the constraints of money and resources. The battle between good and evil showdown the ultimate test of faith. The battle is constantly fought throughout the entire book. This story is through the eyes of a young, battle weary soldier, adjusting to civilian life. The horrors that came home with Jim were relentless. They also took a toll on his personal relationships and his family. With nowhere to turn for help and the VA’s lack to acknowledge veteran issues, Jim turned to the Lord for help. His faith would be tested in the most crucial times of his life. Throughout all the good and bad times, Jim never lost his faith. It is the biggest reason he conquered his demons and is here to share his story today. His story is one that is not here to glamorize his mistakes. What it is here for is to instill hope and faith in others who feel alone. To help those who have gone through the same pitfalls as he has. Others who feel like they have no place to turn for help. The same way he felt when he came back from Vietnam. It is here to give hope with his struggle along the way. It is here to give thanks to the Lord for all his blessings he has endured through life. The great changes he made to make life worth living and fighting for.

Dark Sun, Bright Moon

Oliver Sparrow 2014-07-17 Human sacrifice, communities eaten from within, a vast mind blinding under the mud of Lake Titicaca; the rise and fall of empires cruel and kind. In the Andes of a thousand years ago, the Huari empire is sick. Its civilisation until the arrival of the Spanish. Dark Sun, Bright Moon explores the unique world of the Huari empire. It is a story of isolation, developed over generations by its practitioners but at constant war with the cruelty and kind. It is a story of something far deeper, a plague that has taken their collective spirit. Rooting out this parasite is a task that is laid upon O’Lyvia, a young woman from an obscure little village on the forgotten borders of the Huari empire. This impossible mission is imposed on her by a vast mind, a sentence that has ambitions to shape all human life. Her response to this entails confrontations on sacrificial pyramids, long journeys through the Amazonian jungle and the establishment of not just one but two new empires. Her legacy shapes future Andean civilisation until the arrival of the Spanish. Dark Sun, Bright Moon explores the unique Andean metaphysic: not one of gods and heavens, but a cosmology developed over millennia of isolation, developed over generations by its practitioners but at constant war with the various state religions. It has been systematised from current beliefs, but is essentially authentic to them. As described in the book, therefore, this cosmology is a concrete thing, neither magic nor religion but a technology with a logic of its own that drives the story line. However, this is above all an adventure story in which credible people undertake rational if desperate acts in the face of extreme threat. Dark Sun, Bright Moon is illustrated with over a hundred images (B&W, engravings and maps) and consists of around 170,000 words set in 40 chapters and an appendix, which last gives extensive background material. The author knows modern Peru very well, and has visited all of the physical sites that are described in the book.

Brink

Ivan Z. Newell 2015-06-15 NEW AGE | VISIONARY FICTION | ALLEGORY | INSPIRATIONAL | SPIRIT. Tormented by the never-ending voices of his inner critic and the ‘thought storms’ in his mind, a disheartened man travels West on the brink of despair, stopping overnight in a small Nebraska prairie town, where he experiences a surprising inner awakening...through this alleyway, discover and explore a key tool of self-awareness – ‘The Watcher’ (witness consciousness) – for finding peace on your own inner journey and spiritual path. Inspired by the profound wisdom of Michael Singer’s The Untethered Soul, the author here shares the process of one person’s internal struggle to understand--and escape from--the incessant voices of their inner self-critic. Then ~moving well beyond the entry point of self-criticism--this simple story delves deeply to explore the very nature of thinking and emotions themselves and our relationship to them as human beings. What is real? What is illusion? Who ARE you? Is it possible to be freed from the “thought maze” that typically entangles a person in their everyday life? Through the protagonist’s journey the larger picture of personal identity and its relationship to thoughts and feelings is revealed, as he unknowingly discovers a key tool of self-awareness that the reader will also be able take away for everyday use on their own spiritual path. This transformation evolves over the course of only 24 hours...yet magically, time stretches as the mind of the main character opens and his heart begins to truly flow for the first time. This New Age work falls into the more recently developing genre of Metaphysical & Visionary Fiction. Like James Redfield’s The Celestine Prophecy and Paulo Coelho’s The Alchemist, the subtle—yet powerful--unfolding of this allegorical journey will both captivate and inspire you!

Kharishma

Jenny L. R Nay 2014-02-28 Indistinct voices, strange visitations and unusual dreams have begun to plague Nineteen-year-old Khar days before her return from London to her Oregon home. As the occurrences have spawned haunting emotions she thought she had escaped, she realizes she can’t ignore them any longer and begins to surrender to their pull. Feeling weary and a bit crazy, Khar struggles to cope with what is happening to her. She is forced to open up about herself, only to find out secrets were kept from her by those she trusts the most. She then begins a problematic journey toward self-discovery and uncovers more than she ever imagined possible. But, continuing toward understanding requires Khar to face a dangerous figure, risk of death and a fight for love. Kharishma explores the importance of family ties, both past and present, the consequences of love and hate, and the power of believing in oneself. It is a story of deception, humility, discovery and the strength of bonds to the seen and unseen. It is a story that will not be easily forgotten and will leave you wishing for more.
